Teachers to protest again?

High school. Many boards, including Toronto, Peel, Durham, have yet to sign off on province's deal

Months after inking a deal that ended long-standing labour strife with the provincial government, Ontario's high school teachers are threatening to stage a new round of protests in September.

Paul Elliott, incoming president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation, said Thursday that local leaders will meet Sept. 4 to discuss taking action against school boards that have not signed off on a contract hammered out with the province in April.

"After four months, our members have been left with unsettled contracts, no security and nothing but questions," he said in his first state of the union address at a leadership conference in Toronto. "That is unacceptable."

But the school boards association says the union's call is premature, given that the Ministry of Education only released a funding breakdown this week and it did not fully address boards' concerns about paid sick days.

Elliott said potential action could include protests, rallies and letters. The union is legally blocked from striking due to contracts imposed under Bill 115 and is not considering withdrawing extra-curriculars again.

Of the roughly 40 school boards in the province bargaining with the OSSTF, only eight have implemented the memorandum of understanding the union negotiated with Premier Kathleen Wynne's government.

The memorandum — supported by 84 per cent of teachers — amends contracts imposed under Bill 115, boosting sick day payouts and cutting unpaid days off.

In the Greater Toronto Area, the Toronto, Peel and Durham public boards have yet to sign off. The deadline for boards to confirm their intention to do so is Aug. 29.

Michael Barrett, president of the Ontario Public School Boards' Association, said boards are still considering a recent letter from the province with funding details, which they just received this week.

"It's way too early to think we're on the verge of another labour crisis," he said. "I think, if anything over the last 14 or 15 months, we've recognized that speculation and escalation in the public forum is not really the best process for negotiations."

BOMB BLAST ROCKS BEIRUT

Lebanese citizens and Hezbollah supporters gather at the scene of a car bomb explosion in southern Beirut on Thursday. The powerful car bomb ripped through a neighbourhood that is a stronghold of Hezbollah, killing at least 18 and trapping dozens of others in an inferno of burning cars and buildings in the bloodiest attack yet on Lebanese civilians linked to Syria's civil war. Rail-tunnel construction leaves a bad taste in Weston

Metrolinx. Building airport-express corridor sees residents coated in dust

It leaves a chalky film on the trees, fences and hydrants. It takes only a few minutes outside Anne and Ihor Turjansky's Weston home before you can taste the construction dust coating the inside of your mouth.

The Turjanskys run a bed and breakfast in their stately red-brick house on Church Street, just a few doors west of the construction site of the new rail tunnel near Weston Road and Lawrence Avenue.

It's part of the massive Georgetown South rail-corridor expansion for the Union Pearson Express, which will open in time for the 2015 Pan American Games. Those tracks will also eventually permit GO to run all-day, two-way train service to Brampton, Georgetown and Kitchener.

"We love Weston, but it's killing us," Anne Turjansky said, above the roar of the dump trucks along her narrow residential street. She persuaded the city to post a 30-km/h speed limit but says it is routinely ignored by the trucks that have been hauling construction waste 12 hours a day since spring.

When the street sweeper sprays water on the road, bikes, strollers and shoes slip in the resulting mud.

The rumble of trucks means "I can't rent any of my front rooms during the week," said Turjansky, who has run the B & B for eight of the 28 years she has lived there. "We can't have people sitting on our front porch," she added, patting a chair cushion that sent a cloud of dust swirling.

Metrolinx, the provincial agency in charge of the airport train, says Church Street will no longer be used to haul excavated material after next week. But it's been designated a throughway for trucks until it's closed in November.

NDP MP Mike Sullivan says Metrolinx and its contractor are doing a shoddy job of mitigating the construction impacts. Calcium chloride could reduce the spread of dust, and truck wheels should be washed before they leave the construction site, he said.

But the agency says calcium chloride isn't permitted near an active rail corridor because a chemical reaction could trip the signals. Instead, Metrolinx has a street sweeper on a continuous loop through the neighbourhood; it waters the streets three times a day.

Men's rights group aims to open help centre

Adam McPhee, a board member of the Canadian Association for Equality, says men have become second-class citizens and are in need of a centre devoted to helping them.

McPhee hopes to open a "mancave" that will serve as a refuge for his downtrodden brethren. His group has launched a campaign to establish the first Centre for Men and Families in Toronto. McPhee, who was sexually abused by a girl when he was a teenager, adds there is a lack of support systems for male victims of domestic abuse. Go to metronews.ca for the full story.

Enbridge. Liberals to consult groups on pipeline

Environmental concerns over Enbridge's plan to transport oil from Alberta to refineries in Ontario and Quebec will be addressed before any decisions are made, Premier Kathleen Wynne said on Thursday.

Kathleen Wynne
TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Those concerns have to be at the centre of any talk about the movement of fuel through the province, she said, adding that the governing Liberals will work with all groups, including First Nations communities.

"We need to make sure that those concerns are understood and addressed and dealt with upfront," she said, "so that we're not in a situation where there's lack of understanding and there is backlash."

Anti-pipeline protests have cropped up in Ontario, including a blockade of a pumping station near Hamilton in June that saw 18 people arrested and charged. Seven others were charged after creating a disturbance at the court hearing in Hamilton on Wednesday.

Boy dies two weeks after plaza shooting

A 15-year-old shot in North York has died of his injuries after clinging to life in hospital for two weeks. Toronto police say the teen was hit multiple times on July 28 in the parking lot of the Yorkwoods Plaza near Jane and Finch. Police have not identified the boy because he is a minor and his parents have not given permission, but friends on Twitter mourned the loss of a teen they knew as "Tahj" and "Skinny Tony."

SIU ruling. Police cleared in Sheraton arrest

Citizens have a right to film police but must comply with officer commands, Ontario's Special Investigations Unit has concluded in clearing Toronto police in an arrest that left a hotel guest with a broken rib and other injuries.

"The right to record police activity should not be confused with the authority of the police to require citizens to comply with lawful commands to control a disorderly situation," SIU director Ian Scott said in a news release.

Karl Andrus, of St. Catharines, recorded video on his smartphone of two arrests at the Sheraton Centre Hotel in August 2012. After a couple of minutes, he was told by an officer that he'd "filmed enough" and was in the way. He was told by police repeatedly to move back or he would be arrested.

At one point, Andrus, smartphone in one hand, raised his other arm. The SIU concluded the arm motion was "aggressive" and justified a takedown by a number of officers that left him with bruises, bumps, an abrasion on his head and a broken rib.

Andrus is seeking $1.35 million in damages and an admission that police violated his rights. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Online campaign reunites woman with stolen bike

Lost and found. Cyclist turns to Facebook, Twitter and Instagram after having $1,000 ride swiped downtown

Cyclist Meg Norton made a rookie mistake last week when she locked her bike up outside her downtown office.

Norton, a digital producer with Rethink Canada, applied the lock under the seat, instead of around the wheel and frame. It meant someone could unscrew the seat, slide the lock off, put the seat back on and ride away.

The momentary lapse almost cost her the $1,000 cream-colour Linus bike.

"I remember as I was locking it thinking that it was ridiculous of me to lock it under the seat," Norton recalled. "In my head I'm super small-town. I think I can leave my car window down and unlocked and no one's going to steal."

Distraught at the time, Norton laughs about the incident now that her bike is back home safe, thanks to a social-media campaign and a Toronto musician with a good conscience.

Norton filed a police report almost immediately after it was stolen Aug. 6, but since she didn't remember the bike's serial number there wasn't much they could do, so she decided to use her digital skills to her advantage.

In posters, Norton pleaded with the thief to return it: "I worked hard for the bike.... If you have a change of heart email me at returnmegsbike@gmail.com."

Norton stepped up her efforts last Saturday, turning the email into the hashtag #returnmegsbike and asking Facebook, Twitter and Instagram users to retweet and post a photo of the bike using the hashtag if they saw it.

How it happened

Thanks, stranger

The virtual campaign was all that was needed. Within hours Norton was connected with Valery Gore, a local musician who had purchased the bike for $100 off a woman on the street who said she needed to sell it to leave town and visit her pregnant sister.

After valuing the bike on the Linus website, Gore said she realized the woman's story was likely fabricated.

Gore's husband spotted a poster for the bike and texted it to her. From there, Gore found the hashtag and got in touch with Norton over Facebook. On Monday, bike and owner were reunited.

Meeting called to discuss Holyday's replacement

Doug Holyday and Mayor Rob Ford TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Mayor Rob Ford is recalling city councillors from their summer break to vote on how to replace Deputy Mayor Doug Holyday as councillor for Ward 3, Etobicoke Centre.

Two options will be on the table at a special Aug. 26 council meeting.

The first is to hold a by-election, at a cost of $175,000 to $225,000, to let the ward's 52,000 residents choose their new representative.

Council could opt, though, to simply appoint a caretaker councillor by majority vote.

Ford is strongly advocating a byelection to replace Holyday, who was elected the Etobicoke-Lakeshore MPP on Aug. 1.

"In the coming weeks and months, city council will be wrestling with a number of vital issues, including the 2014 budget," a Ford statement says. "These important decisions will have significant impacts on the everyday lives of Toronto residents."

Ford has called a community consultation meeting at Silverthorn Collegiate Institute, 291 Mill Rd., for 7 p.m. on Aug. 21 to get resident feedback.

But a significant number of councillors, including Holyday, have argued that his replacement's short tenure does not merit the cost of a byelection.

The next general election is Oct. 27, 2014, and city business will slow considerably during the campaign period before it.

Other councillors, including Mike Del Grande and Gloria Lindsay-Luby, are expected to miss the special meeting because of previously booked trips.

SIGNAL UPGRADES, NEW CROSSOVERS WILL PAY DIVIDENDS

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

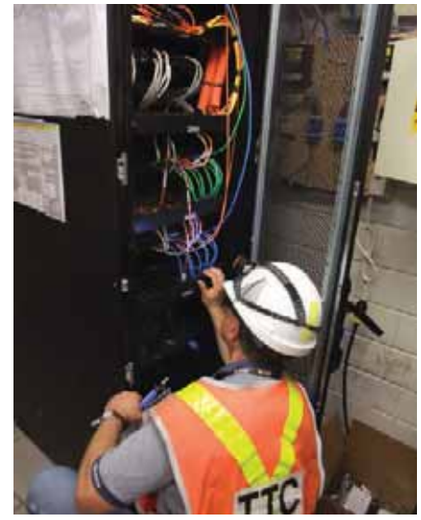
Last weekend saw the largest-ever planned TTC subway closure when the Yonge-University-Spadina (YUS) line was closed for two days south of Bloor St. to carry out continued signal system upgrade work.

Months of preparation and planning culminated in the successful temporary disconnection of the existing 60-year-old signals, then the installation and testing of new equipment. It was followed by the reinstatement and testing of the existing system in time for a trouble-free start to service on Monday morning.

This is just one phase in the complete renewal of the original signal system along the entire YUS line, from Finch to Downsview stations. Once the system is fully up and running, we will be able to safely run trains much closer together using what is called automatic train control, thereby increasing line capacity by upwards of 25 per cent and decreasing wait times. New signals will also deliver far greater reliability going forward.

The safety-critical nature of signalling work means that it cannot be rushed, and requires more time than the few hours available to us each night when service shuts down. Signals control train movement and, ultimately, customer safety, so each and every piece of work has to be carefully carried out, checked and recorded to ensure that it is 100-per-cent functional. The work also has to be carried out in phases and the first step, now complete at Union, is to ready the new equipment for commissioning in October when we will need to do a further closure.

Another improvement, soon to be delivered, involves three new "crossovers." A crossover is special track that allows us to reverse a train's direction where a crossover is installed in the event of disruption to service. At present, too few crossovers mean that subway service has to be suspended over a far greater area than is ideal. Last weekend, we successfully tested the new crossover at King Station. This will be commissioned in October, with the other two new crossovers at College and St Clair stations to follow at later dates.



We took advantage of the closure to carry out a raft of other improvements along the closed section of subway, including installation of new track equipment, as well as cleaning, painting and repairs at King, St Andrew and Queen stations.

Any closure inevitably causes inconvenience and frustration to customers. I would like to offer a big thank you to you for bearing with us while we undertake this work. We chose last weekend because we carry fewer passengers in the summer. Those who took the TTC would have noted a major bus shuttle was deployed with a large number of customer assistance staff and plenty of brightly coloured signage to guide customers on their way.

I would like to acknowledge and thank, as well, all the dedicated and professional TTC staff who planned and delivered this successful closure. A huge amount was achieved and this gets us ever closer to the introduction of automatic train control on our busiest subway line and the greater capacity that this will deliver.

Thanks again for bearing with us while we modernize the TTC.

Let's flashback to the Ex

In its heyday the CNE was a mix of politically incorrect sideshows, death-defying stunts and awe-inspiring inventions

2 Congress of Fat People. My but this is inappropriate
Midway sideshow, CNE, 1913. CITY OF TORONTO ARCHIVES

One photo shows a crowd walking in front of Johnny J. Jones' Congress of Fat People, a sideshow at the CNE in 1913. Its sign promises "The Jolliest Fattest People on Earth." One of them is "Little Emma" ("My But She Is Fat," the sign says,) another is "Big Boss Henry" ("A Mountain of Flesh").

In another photo, two men in three-piece suits and hats each hold a receiver to their ear that's wired to a huge box — they're performing a demonstration of the telephone for the crowd in 1888.

The photos, and many others in the Toronto Archives and the CNE's own archival collection, offer a glimpse at the CNE's past that can't be relived this year.

Today, we'd be rightly outraged at such an exploitative sideshow. "You'd be hard-put to get away with that today," agrees CNE general manager David Bednar.

The demonstration of new technology is equally dated. The name for the Ex when it began in Toronto 135 years ago was the Toronto Industrial Exhibition and it was "an industrial exhibition for an agricultural society," says Bednar.

Families saw their first electric light bulb at the Ex and heard their first record. In the baby-boom era, families saw their first colour TV.

"But in the last decade and a half we've had to come to grips with the move from the industrial age to the information age," says Bednar. "Today, if you want to find what's new you to go the Internet. What's new is kind of a bygone thing for us."

The small pleasures

A time before Wonderland

Maurizio Bianchi recalls the CNE of the mid-'60s, when he was about eight years old, arriving by bus from St. Clair and Dufferin after waiting in anticipation all summer.

"This (was) an era when we made our own toys; there was no toys, no Canada's Wonderland."

He recalls the small pleasures: getting his name written on a hat with glue that was then covered in sparkles, eating a hot dog and cotton candy, winning a teddy bear.

Death toll soars in Egypt as violence spills into 2nd day

Turmoil spreads.
Police, churches and government buildings attacked as Muslim Brotherhood calls for mass rally on Friday

Weeping relatives in search of loved ones uncovered the faces of the dead in a Cairo mosque near the smouldering epicentre of support for ousted president Mohammed Morsi as the death toll soared past 600 Thursday from Egypt's deadliest day since the Arab Spring began.

World condemnation widened for the bloody crackdown Wednesday on Morsi's mostly Islamist supporters, including an angry response from U.S. President Barack Obama.

Violence spread Thursday, with government buildings set afire near the Pyramids, policemen gunned down and scores of Christian churches attacked. As turmoil engulfed the country, the Interior Ministry authorized the use of deadly force against protesters targeting police and state institutions.

The Muslim Brotherhood, trying to regroup after the assault on their encampments and the arrest of many of their leaders, called for a mass rally on Friday in a challenge to the government's declaration of a nationwide state of emergency and a dusk-to-dawn curfew.

At least 638 people were confirmed killed and nearly 4,000 wounded in the violence sparked when police smashed the two sit-ins in Cairo where Morsi's supporters had been camped out for six weeks calling for his reinstatement.

Foreign affairs. Egyptian authorities must 'protect worshippers': Baird

Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird says he's concerned about attacks on religious institutions as deadly violence continues to flare in Egypt.

But so far, Canada has not imposed any sanctions against the interim government in Cairo following a military crackdown against supporters of ousted Egyptian president Mohammed Morsi.

In a statement, Baird and Andrew Bennett, Canada's ambassador for religious freedom, call attacks on Christian churches in Egypt unconscionable, and they say authorities need to protect worshippers.

"We are concerned by recent attacks on religious institutions in Egypt, in particular the unconscionable attacks on Coptic Orthodox and Anglican churches, and on Baptist and Franciscan institutions," the statement reads.

John Baird THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

"Attacks on places of worship are unacceptable. Canada calls on Egyptian authorities to protect worshippers and religious sites from violence and intimidation."

Egypt's ambassador to Canada, Wael Ahmed Kamal Aboul-Magd, was unavailable Thursday to respond to Baird's statement. His assistant said the ambassador would not be back to the embassy until the weekend. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Obama: Relations with Egypt 'cannot continue as usual'

Condemns bloodshed.

U.S. president cancels joint military exercise with Egypt; still won't call military takeover a coup

U.S. President Barack Obama on Thursday cancelled joint military exercises with Egypt next month and said the United States "strongly condemns" the violent crackdown on Muslim Brotherhood protesters that has killed hundreds.

America's co-operation with Egypt "cannot continue as usual while civilians are being killed in the streets," he said.

It was the president's first statement on the rapidly deteriorating situation in Egypt. Obama still did not label the Egyptian military's recent takeover as a coup — a designation that would have forced a cutoff of more than $1 billion US in aid a year.

Speaking from his week-long vacation in Massachusetts, Obama directed his national security team to see what additional steps the U.S. might take.

"America cannot determine the future of Egypt," Obama said. "That's a task for the Egyptian people. We don't take sides with any particular party or political figure." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Still not saying 'coup'

Fearing the U.S. might lose leverage with the Egyptian army, Obama has so far refused to call the military takeover a coup. Obama has been criticized for that policy by both opponents and some supporters.

- "We appreciate the complexity of the situation," Obama said Thursday. "While Mohammed Morsi was elected president in a democratic election, his government was not inclusive and did not respect the views of all Egyptians."

U.S. President Barack Obama makes a statement to the media regarding events in Egypt from his vacation home on the island of Martha's Vineyard Thursday. Obama announced that the U.S. is cancelling a joint military exercise with Egypt amid escalating violence. JACQUELYN MARTIN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hawaii

Woman loses arm in suspected shark attack

A 20-year-old German tourist lost her arm in a suspected shark attack off Hawaii Wednesday.

"She screamed and called for help," said Maui Fire Services Chief Lee Mainaga.

The arm was not found, Mainaga said.

Maui County emergency responders said the woman's right arm was severed below her shoulder as she snorkeled about 50 metres off shore.

The woman was helped to shore by two friends and a kayaker. She was unconscious and was rushed to a hospital. The woman's friends did not see the attack, and choppy water limited visibility.

The attack was the eighth in Hawaii this year, according to state data. Last year saw 11 attacks, far above the annual average of 4.75. Hawaii has not seen a fatal shark attack since 2004. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lebanon. Powerful car bomb in Beirut kills 18 in Hezbollah stronghold

A powerful car bomb tore through a bustling south Beirut neighbourhood that is a stronghold of Hezbollah on Thursday, killing at least 18 and trapping dozens of others in an inferno of burning cars and buildings in the bloodiest attack yet on Lebanese civilians linked to Syria's civil war.

The blast is the second in just over a month to hit one of the Shiite militant group's bastions of support, and the deadliest in decades. It raises the spectre of a sharply divided Lebanon being pulled further into the conflict next door, which is being fought on increasingly sectarian lines pitting Sunnis against Shiites.

Syria-based Sunni rebels and militant Islamist groups fighting to topple Syria's President Bashar Assad have threatened to target Hezbollah strongholds in Lebanon in retaliation for intervening on behalf of his regime in the conflict.

Bond stuntman at London Games dies skydiving in Alps

Mark Sutton. Police say man wearing wingsuit jumped from helicopter but crashed into Swiss Alps ridge

Stuntman Mark Sutton, dressed as James Bond, parachutes into the Olympic Stadium during the London Games last summer. PA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

The British stuntman who parachuted into the London Olympics opening ceremony as James Bond last summer has been killed in an accident in the Swiss Alps while flying a special wingsuit.

Extreme sports broadcaster Epic TV said Thursday that Mark Sutton was killed during a gathering it had organized involving 20 wingsuit pilots who were being filmed as they jumped from helicopters.

Wingsuits — aerodynamic jumpsuits that make wearers look like winged superheroes — allow flyers to soar long distances before opening parachutes to land.

Swiss police confirmed Sutton died Wednesday when he crashed into a rocky ridge near Trient in the Valais region. They gave his age as 42.

The former army officer had a starring role in one of the most memorable parts of the 2012 Summer Games opening ceremony — a filmed sequence in which Daniel Craig's James Bond escorted Queen Elizabeth from Buckingham Palace and into a helicopter. Stunt doubles of Bond and the queen then performed a live parachute jump into the Olympic Stadium. Sutton was the tuxedo-clad Bond, while his friend Gary Connery wore a pink dress and wig to play the queen.

Sentencing. Three men get prison time for gang rape case in Brazil

A Rio de Janeiro court convicted three men Thursday in the gang rape of an American woman aboard a public transit van that shocked Brazil and made headlines around the world.

Judge Guilherme Schilling delivered the verdict Wednesday, sentencing 20-year-old Jonathan Froudakis de Souza and 21-year-old Walace Aparecido de Souza Silva each to 49 years and three months in prison on rape, robbery and extortion charges.

Carlos Armando Costa dos Santos, whose age was not given, was sentenced to 21 years and seven months in prison, while a minor detained in connection with the rape has yet to be tried.

Israeli official suspended for Facebook posts

An Israeli official involved in government public relations has been suspended from his work for writing crude Facebook posts. A government official said Thursday that Danny Seaman was instructed to stop his work "for now." The official spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to discuss the matter with reporters.

In one of his posts published by Haaretz newspaper, Seaman said he was "sick" of "self-righteous" Japanese and international commemorations of Hiroshima and Nagasaki victims.

"Hiroshima and Nagasaki were the consequence of Japanese aggression. You reap what you sow," he said.

Pole vaulter defends Russia's anti-gay laws

Yelena Isinbayeva supports Russia's anti-gay laws by slamming athletes who painted their fingernails rainbow colour. ALEXANDER ZEMLIANICHENKO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Colourful statement. Some athletes painted their fingernails rainbow colours to stand against anti-gay laws

Pole-vault great Yelena Isinbayeva condemned homosexuality Thursday after criticizing competitors who painted their fingernails in rainbow colours to support gays and lesbians in the face of a new anti-gay law in Russia.

The Russian, who won her third world title Tuesday in front of a boisterous home crowd, came out in favour of the law, which has drawn sharp criticism and led Western activists to call for a boycott of next year's Winter Games in the resort of Sochi.

"If we allow to promote and do all this stuff on the street, we are very afraid about our nation because we consider ourselves like normal, standard people," Isinbayeva, a two-time Olympic champion, said in English. "We just live with boys with woman, woman with boys."

At least two Swedish athletes competed Thursday with their fingernails painted in rainbow colours at Luzhniki Stadium.

Emma Green Tregaro, who won a bronze medal at the 2005 worlds, posted a picture of her fingers on the social media site Instagram, saying "Nails painted in the colours of the rainbow." She followed that with several hashtags, including "#pride" and "#moscow2013."

Swedish sprinter Moa Hjelmer ran in the 200-meter heats with nails painted in the rainbow colours.

Isinbayeva said it was wrong for the Swedes to make such a statement while competing in Russia.

Gang violence shuts 16 schools in South Africa

Cape Town. Provincial leader calls for troops to be deployed

Education officials in South Africa closed 16 schools, affecting 12,000 students, Thursday in an area near Cape Town because of a spike in gang violence that has left teachers afraid to go to work.

South Africa's police services have increased their presence in the area recently, said spokeswoman for the Western Cape Education Ministry, Bronagh Casey. However the violence is still affecting schools in the area.

"We are closing the schools because our educators say they are unsafe going to the area to report for duty," said Casey. "We rely on law enforcement in the area. Our education relies on a stable community in which to operate."

Western Cape Premier Helen Zille on Wednesday called for the army to be deployed to the area.

Senate mulls more payback for Wallin

The Senate hasn't yet decided whether to order Sen. Pamela Wallin to pay back more money for her travel to so-called "networking events."

But Conservative Sen. Carolyn Stewart Olsen says there are lingering questions about "quite a few" of those claims, which came to nearly $21,000.

"Our committee did review the claims in question and asked Finance to do more research for us," she said in an email Thursday.

"I do not have an idea of amounts right now. Will probably take some time to sort out."

Some of those networking events include Wallin's meeting with someone from the New York City Ballet; with a Bay Street investor to talk about a business she was about to buy; and with someone to talk about a book project.

Teens in Rehtaeh Parsons case appear before court

Child-porn allegations. Pair will be back in a month to give attorneys time to review evidence

RUTH DAVENPORT
Metro in Halifax

The two young men facing child pornography-related charges arising from the Rehtaeh Parsons case will return to Halifax youth court in September.

The 18-year-olds were arraigned Thursday morning, but their lawyers asked for an adjournment, saying they needed time to review the case against their file.

"We've received nothing other than a few bits of disclosure five minutes before we stepped into the courtroom," defence attorney Josh Arnold told reporters after the brief appearance.

Michael Parsons, uncle of Rehtaeh, believes the two accused should have been charged with manslaughter.
ANDREW VAUGHAN/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rehtaeh took her own life in April, reportedly after two years of bullying over an alleged sexual assault when she was 15.

The accused were arrested on Aug. 8. One is charged with creating and distributing child pornography. The other faces two charges of distribution.

Rehtaeh's uncle told reporters afterwards he wasn't satisfied with the charges.

"I think they should be charged with manslaughter," said Michael Parsons, who believes the alleged child pornography, distribution and subsequent bullying "caused that much anger within her that she had to take her own life."

Arnold said intense emotion is to be expected but expressed concern regarding the scrutiny surrounding his client.

"It appears that individuals on the Internet and certain members of the media conducted their own one-sided trial," he said.

Arnold said the case would likely be heard by a judge alone, rather than a judge and jury.

Fair-trial rights

"These boys have not been prosecuted in the media.... It was only through the media participation that this case is even being looked at today."

Michael Parsons, uncle of Rehtaeh

A sand tiger shark shows off its jagged teeth at Ripley's South Carolina aquarium. CONTRIBUTED

Believe it or not: Ripley's aquarium now to open in fall

Was slated for June.
The setup of 50 tanks that will house 1,500 creatures is taking a bit longer than expected

H2O

"You look after the water, the fish will look after themselves. You can rush the building construction but you can't rush the setting up of the tanks."
Peter Doyle, Ripley's general manager.

Ripley's Aquarium of Canada, Toronto's first major new tourist attraction in decades, was supposed to open at the base of the CN Tower in June. Ripley's is now aiming for September.

Peter Doyle, a native of Dundas, Ont., who returned from a career in Asia to become general manager in Toronto, said Ripley's won't rush the setup of 50 tanks that will be home to about 15,000 creatures.

"We're putting the final touches on the building, but what really takes time is re-creating a marine environment with 557,000 pounds of salt. Life support systems are being tested right now," Doyle said.

"You look after the water, the fish will look after themselves. You can rush the building construction but you can't rush the setting up of the tanks."

Seventeen tanks will form a Canadian gallery highlighting fish from the Atlantic, Pacific and Arctic oceans, including salmon, a natural blue lobster, a century-old lobster, king crabs and a six-metre-deep moving kelp forest.

Visitors will also see the world's biggest jellyfish tank.

A construction worker guides a large curved piece of plexi glass that will be part of the kelp display tank at the base of The CN Tower. CHRIS SO/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

'Dangerous lagoon'

Sharks, rays and turtles, oh my!

The Ripley's aquarium's showpiece will be the massive tropical "dangerous lagoon" tank that will hold about half the total creatures, including toothy sharks, otherworldly sawfish, gliding rays and flap-finned sea turtles.

A moving sidewalk will take visitors on a 20-minute trip through the bottom of the tank.

About half the creatures have so far arrived from other facilities — none are being caught wild — including those carefully trucked from Ripley's aquariums in Gatlinburg, Tenn., and Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Finishing touches are also being put on 117 "interactives," including touch screens and "pop up" acrylic windows that let people stick their heads up into tanks to stare down sharks and other fish.

Ripley's will go out to schools. In 12 classrooms, it has already test-driven aquatic education programs meant to mesh with the provincial curriculum.

The aquarium is also getting ready to host some of those students during "sleeping with the sharks" overnight camp-outs under the big tank.

"It's not just kids who want that," Doyle said, chuckling. "Adults, too."

Bet you can't tell who is Canadian: This is a collection of portraits that Kitchener-born photographer and high school teacher Colin Shafer has taken on his travels. His latest project, Cosmopolis Toronto, will include a portrait of one person from every country in the world who now calls Toronto home. COURTESY COLIN SHAFER

Faces from around the world — in T.O.

A photo for every country. Cosmopolis Toronto profiles immigrants' link to birthplace, and their new home

MELITA KUBURAS
melita.kuburas@metronews.ca

What does it mean to 'look' Canadian?

Colin Shafer — a white, 30-year-old man with brown hair, brown eyes and a light beard — gets this a lot.

"I find that really strange," says Shafer, on a call from London where he's completing a master's degree at the School of Oriental and African Studies.

"My dad's American and my mother was born in the U.K. I'm not that deeply connected to Canada, so why do I look Canadian? What does that really mean?"

One of the reasons the Kitchener-born photographer and high school teacher launched his most recent art project, called Cosmopolis Toronto, is to explore the idea of identity and how it relates to the place we call home.

This October, Shafer will begin to photograph Torontonians with the aim of collecting the portraits of one person from every single country in the world. His full-time job for four months will be getting to know three people per day — taking one photo of them in a place that gives that person a sense of connection to this city, and another of them touching something that links them to their birthplace.

For instance, a local writer wants to be photographed in the library where they first became inspired. "I think that's a beautiful connection," Shafer says.

For their second portrait, another person wants to hold a picture of their grandma, whom they lost touch with.

Shafer has always been aware of this country's diversity, but thinks there isn't always opportunity for immigrants to share their story. He hopes Cosmopolis — which will plot portraits on an interactive map created by German ad agency Marcellini — will allow people to see that, "wow, here we have the entire world."

But if the 'global village' concept brings to mind a cliché image of different races holding hands to portray the beauty of multiculturalism, rest assured that's not what Cosmopolis Toronto is about, Shafer stresses.

"If that was my agenda the project itself could come off as just another one of those feel-good projects. There's going to be real people, real stories," Shafer says.

Get on board

- Cosmopolis Toronto is a crowdfunding-supported project on Indiegogo.com.
- Money raised will support the artist, who will eventually turn his portraits of about 200 people into an interactive map, a book and a gallery display.

Canadian Pacific Railway locomotives are shuffled around a marshalling yard in Calgary on May 16, 2012. The railway is rejecting a demand by the Quebec government that it help fund the Lac-Mégantic cleanup. JEFF MCINTOSH/THE CANADIAN PRESS

CPR refuses to pay for Lac-Mégantic

Montreal. Province says CPR was responsible for fateful shipment that was supposed to send crude oil from North Dakota to refinery in New Brunswick

Canadian Pacific says it holds no financial responsibility for the Lac-Mégantic disaster and is rejecting a legal demand by the Quebec government to help fund the cleanup of the devastated Quebec town.

The railway has announced that it will appeal the legal order.

The news comes one day after the provincial government added CPR to a list of defendants that it says are responsible for paying for the massive mop-up in Lac-Mégantic, where a train derailed on July 6 and dumped millions of litres of crude oil into the environment.

"Canadian Pacific has reviewed the notice. As a matter of fact, and law, CP is not responsible for this cleanup," said railway spokesman Ed Greenberg.

But Environment Minister Yves-Francois Blanchet was quick to retort. "Under the law on environmental quality, the minister does not ask for, or suggest, compensation ... he orders it," said Blanchet in a statement.

The disaster killed 47 people and led to a mass evacuation in the community of 6,000. The derailment has since prompted a criminal investigation, several lawsuits and concerns that locals may have to abandon the downtown core. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg drug bust

Boy, 12, charged with trafficking cocaine

A raid in downtown Winnipeg has led to cocaine-trafficking charges against a 12-year-old boy.

Officers seized crack cocaine, drug paraphernalia and $1,200 cash during the raid Wednesday afternoon. Six people were arrested.

The boy is also charged with possessing the proceeds of crime and failing to comply with previous court-ordered conditions.

He remains in custody at the Manitoba Youth Centre. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatoon. Mental-health commission to educate police officers

The head of the Canadian Mental Health Commission says good education and training will help police officers interact better with people who have mental-health issues.

Louise Bradley spoke Thursday at the Canadian Association of Police Boards' annual meeting in Saskatoon on Thursday. Education and training on this issue is only the beginning, she said.

Saskatoon Police Chief Clive Weighill says it's one of the biggest policing problems that has emerged in the last 10 to 15 years.

"We're dealing with homeless people. We're dealing with people who have mental health (and) addiction problems," he said.

"People call us. We end up putting intoxicated people in our detention areas. They don't belong there. It's a health issue, not a crime issue."

A coroner's inquest is scheduled this fall into the deaths of three people with possible mental-health issues who were shot by Toronto police. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Downton Abbey. Board game, beauty products, wine: Hit show rolling out new lines

Forget Mad Men modernism. This season's style is all about Downton Abbey's Edwardian opulence.

Millions around the world have been seduced by the strait-laced but stylish world of the British historical drama. Soon they'll be able to take some of that style home, getting lips as soft as Lady Mary's, wine inspired by Lord Grantham's favourite tipple and even walls as grey as Mrs. Patmore's kitchen.

Since it premiered in 2010, the series about the family and servants of a grand English house in the 1910s and 1920s has become a television juggernaut.

The program's makers have arguably been slow to exploit the commercial potential of that popularity. But that is about to change. Along with the fourth season starting on British TV next month, and on PBS in January, comes a range of merchandise that includes a board game, homewares, clothes, beauty products and even Downton wine.

Michelle Dockery as Lady Mary
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

"We haven't rushed into it," said executive producer Gareth Neame. "We don't want to carpet bomb the retail sector."

In keeping with the program's image, the products being rolled out aim to be quirky rather than kitschy. This fall, U.K. retailer Marks & Spencer will sell a Downton beauty line with packaging bearing quotations from the series, including the advice offered by Maggie Smith's Dowager Countess of Grantham in the first episode: "No one wants to kiss a girl in black." Homes were selling at a brisk pace in Vancouver and Toronto last month, while the national average price continued to rise, suggesting Canada's real-estate industry has returned to "average levels" after a decline that began last summer. A Canadian Real Estate Association report showed July resales edging up 0.2 per cent from June on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The Tortoise Torte - a classic combination of chocolate, caramel and pecans - now in

Is imitation also the most profitable form of flattery? The two finalists in Tim Hortons' Duelling Donuts contest owe their inspiration to already-famous treats — namely, a certain sandwich cookie and a slow-poke chocolate candy. Which one is the $10K doughnut?

Flavour faceoff.
Tim Hortons contest whittled down from 63,000 entries to two

After weeks of voting and much pondering by a panel of judges, Tim Hortons' Duelling Donuts contest has come down to the final faceoff.

The Oreo Borealis — a re-invention of the classic cookie — will take on the Tortoise Torte, a chocolate-caramel-pecan confection, for the $10,000 grand prize. A Tim Hortons spokesperson also said it was "expected" that the winner would have their doughnut re-created in stores nationwide.

The Oreo Borealis is the creation of Jason Flannery, from London, Ont.; the Tortoise Torte was dreamed up by Toronto's Andrew Shepherd.

Canadians submitted some 63,000 entries, which were whittled down to eight doughnuts in July with the help of a panel of judges that included Beverly Hills, 90210 actor Jason Priestley.

The contest was dreamed up after Priestley appeared in an episode of the sitcom How I Met Your Mother last February, which riffed on the idea that Canadians were defined by their double-doubles and Dutchies. In a fake documentary, the Los Angeles-based actor claimed he had invented The Priestley, a strawberry-vanilla doughnut with a chocolate Timbit nestled inside.

Tim Hortons then created a batch of the fictional pastry, and asked Canadians to bring their own doughnut dreams to life from any combination of ingredients in their pantries.

Among the finalists eliminated over the last few weeks of online voting are the melty-marshmallow S'more Of It, the banana-cream Monkey C-Donut, Monkey Do-Nut and the luxe remake of a classic, Don't Touchie My Dutchie.

Voting for the finals will end Aug. 18, with the winner to be announced Aug. 19.

SOCIAL MEDIA IS SO DOPE

THE METRO LIST

Neil Morton
metronews.ca

1 Ashton Kutcher. Channelling Steve Jobs, whom he plays in the new biographical drama Jobs, Kutcher gave a rousing speech at the Teen Choice Awards. "Build a life. Don't live one!" he said, adding, "The sexiest thing in the entire world is being really smart. And being thoughtful and generous." Indeed.

2 Shaq holding LiLo. The post-rehab Lohan tweeted out a picture of Shaquille O'Neal holding her in his arms. The photo was well circulated on social media because a) it's Shaq, b) it's LiLo and c) we all love redemption stories. Or d) maybe it's because she's holding two cellphones.

3 Rich Kids Of Beverly Hills. A reality show loosely based on the Tumblr blog Rich Kids of Instagram about the young and beautiful with yacht-loads of dough will be launching on E! It's called Rich Kids of Beverly Hills. If things don't work out in the ratings, I suggest Middle-Aged Dads Of Toronto. We're fun, humble, self-deprecating dudes. Minus the billions to spend.

4 Clive Thompson. The New York-based, Canadian writer's new book, Smarter Than You Think: How Technology is Changing Our Minds for the Better, is out early September. It explores extraordinary people who augment their minds in inventive ways, and how our digital tools are giving us new ways to learn and share ideas. I will live tweet, Facebook, Instagram and Tumblr it while I read it.

5 Hyperloop. The Internet was abuzz this week as entrepreneur/inventor Elon Musk released alpha design plans for his Hyperloop, a high-speed transportation system that will transport people in aluminum pods going up to 1,126 km/h. Boats, planes, automobiles, trains and Segways — those are so 2012.

6 Facebook old school? Mashable posted an op-ed piece by a 13-year-old announcing that teens are turning to the likes of Instagram, Vine and Snapchat for their social networks. FB, it seems, is intrusive and full of snooping parents and grandparents. My teen daughter recently left it, too. The day I start snapchatting her is the day she leaves that, too.

7 Weiner, deflated. BuzzFeed did a live interview with New York mayoral candidate Anthony "Carlos Danger" Weiner, who, instead of doing damage control amidst his latest sexting scandal, bombed, coming across as an awkward, defensive, self-righteous knob with no sense of humour — or a good answer to the question, "Why didn't you use Snapchat?"

8 Gameboy back. A new modern phenomenon, "Gameboy back," has emerged of young gamers suffering from back problems more commonly seen in adults. Seems the effects of bad posture from hunching over game consoles and tablets has lead to a rise in spine curvature. Kids: Stand up, go outside and play. There's a whole other world to discover.

9 Ron Burgundy memoir. The fictional character played by Will Ferrell in the 2004 hit comedy Anchorman will publish a fake memoir titled Let Me Off At The Top!: My Classy Life and Other Musings, on Nov. 19. What a brilliant promo idea leading up to the film sequel Anchorman 2: The Legend Continues, coming out Dec. 20.

10 Man tweets he needs pot. Toronto man Sunith Baheerathan tweeted out he needed weed and York Regional Police chimed in with this gem of a reply: "Awesome! Can we come too? MT @Sunith_DB8R Any dealers in Vaughan wanna make a 20sac chop? Come to Keele/Langstaff Mr. Lube, need a spliff." We're not sure if he got his weed but he's no longer at Mr. Lube.

Meet the world's newest critter

MARK GURNEY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New species in South America

Imagine a mini-raccoon with a teddy-bear face that is so cute it's hard to resist, let alone overlook. But somehow science did — until now.

Researchers announced Thursday a rare discovery of a new species of mammal called the olinguito. The reddish-brown animal is about two feet long with a long tail and weighs about two pounds.

It belongs to a grouping of large creatures that include dogs, cats and bears.

The critter leaps through the trees of mountainous forests of Ecuador and Colombia at night, according to a Smithsonian researcher who has spent the past decade tracking them.

Outside experts said this discovery is not merely renaming something, but a genuine new species — with three new subspecies — and a significant find, the type that hasn't happened in about 35 years.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Olingos vs. olinguitos

- Olinguitos are smaller, have shorter tails, a rounder face, tinier ears and darker, bushier fur.
- Olinguitos are the smallest member of the raccoon family of mammals.

RE: 'Disgusting' anti-Abortion Flyers Flood Mailboxes, published Aug. 15

I just have a quick suggestion on possible wording that could have been used in one of the paragraphs of today's front-page story.

"The postcards each have pictures of [what the group (CCBR) claims to be] aborted fetuses right next to a photo of the MP representing the riding where the particular flyer is delivered."

I doubt that a background check was done on the flyers to actually confirm that the pictures are in fact aborted fetuses. I am almost certain that they are images of stillbirths/miscarriages/spontaneous abortions and were even possibly wanted pregnancies. Thankfully Shalini Misir, the resident whom you quoted, was not phased by this tasteless attempt to get support for the anti-choice agenda, but many in the general public will be affected by the gruesome and inaccurate images.

I also noticed that the printed version of the article is missing a couple of paragraphs compared to the version online, which I imagine was done in order to fit the space.

Synopsis

"You hear nothing. You see nothing. You only serve." Those are the words of advice given to former plantation worker Cecil Gaines (Forest Whitaker), on his first day as a butler at the White House. For the next three decades he was a witness to history, serving eight presidents during the stormiest days of America's history. Gaines turns away, but his son Louis (David Oyelowo) becomes involved with the Freedom Riders and later with the Black Panthers. Father and son don't see eye-to-eye despite mother Gloria's (Oprah Winfrey) best efforts to unite them. Steve Gow takes over for Reel Guy Mark Breslin.

The Butler did it, with his son, in the White House

Movie review.
Forest Whitaker's performance, coupled with David Oyelowo's work, keep historical drama from slipping into melodrama

Richard: Steve, at the centre of The Butler is Forest Whitaker's remarkable performance, which skillfully tempers the film's tendency to veer into melodrama. He's a dignified presence throughout, in a quiet performance that allows the character's inner life to shine through. It's all about the details. The way he strokes the tie Jackie Kennedy gave him after JFK's assassination. The pained looked in his eye as he kicks his son out of the White House. They are small moments that cut through the movie's sweeping story, keeping the whole thing grounded.

Steve: It's a nuanced performance that definitely helps counterbalance what could've become a melodramatic civil rights morality tale. Not only that, but it's powerful because Whitaker and director Lee Daniels allow us to see racism as an institutionalized issue whereas most films on the topic simply personalize it. As strong as the huge ensemble cast is though, there are a few distracting duds. Besides sporting a waxy Pinocchio-like proboscis, was John Cusack even trying to portray Richard Nixon?

RC: It's almost as if Cusack is doing an impression of someone doing an impression of Nixon. Perhaps they should have pulled Rich Little out of retirement to do the role. Nonetheless, Cusack does capture some of Tricky Dick's oily desperation, but it is a surreal performance overall. The casting of the other presidents — Robin Williams as Eisenhower, James Marsden as JFK, Liev Schreiber as Johnson, and Alan Rickman as Reagan — feels stunty, but director Lee Daniels realizes the story isn't theirs to tell and wisely keeps the focus on Gaines and family to tell this story. I thought David Oyelowo was terrific. You?

SG: I thought Oyelowo pretty much stole the show — not easy considering he's opposite the likes of Whitaker and Oprah and plays the range of a butler's disgruntled teenaged son-turned civil rights radical to middle-aged Obama supporter. More to the point, Daniels' may be most successful exploring the strained relationship between him and his straitlaced father.

RC: Their strained relationship was pushed to the limit by the tone of the times. The overall timeline will be familiar to anyone who's ever watched the History Channel, but The Butler recounts the turbulent times through one man's deeply divided family, bringing the story home with simple, first person storytelling.

SG: To that end, Daniels surely deserves some recognition. After all, it's probably impossible to effectively wedge the civil rights issue into a two hour movie. At least The Butler allows for a fascinating perspective.

Director. Joshua Michael Stern

Stars. Ashton Kutcher, Dermot Mulroney

Jobs takes us from Steve Jobs' (Ashton Kutcher) Paulo Alto, Calif., days where he and his friends redefined the way people interact with technology, through to his rise and fall as Apple's CEO and on to his eventual redemption. Serving as a reminder of how rare it is to find an extraordinary film about an extraordinary person, the movie isn't innovative or bold enough to be memorable. Perhaps it's because it's hard to take Kutcher seriously in the role of a visionary, but Jobs feels better suited to TV than the big screen.

Thriller

Paranoia

Director. Robert Luketic

Stars. Liam Hemsworth, Gary Oldman, Amber Heard

A thriller with precious few thrills, Paranoia promises edge-of-your-seat espionage drama, but flatlines from the start. Liam Hemsworth does the best he can with a stale script, and the Gary Oldman/Harrison Ford duo manage to occasionally defibrillate some life into the film with their verbal swordplay — but there's just not enough of it. The story is about as believable as a pro wrestling match, and with no real surprise twists or turns, the first time watching Paranoia feels like the 50th.

Director. Jeff Wadlow

Kick-Ass wants to take a bigger bite out of crime, while his would-be partner, 15-year-old Hit-Girl, just wants to be a teenager. It's that second part where this sequel finds its legs, pitting Mindy, Hit-Girl's alter-ego, against a group of high school mean girls. Meanwhile Kick-Ass befriends a team of amateur heroes led by a brilliantly unhinged Jim Carrey. But the real conflict comes from a group of super villains who have set their sights on Kick-Ass. The resulting build to the climatic final battle is the movie's lone rough patch.

Hollywood spends millions in ham-fisted attempts to excoriate the government, the media and Wall Street. A disgraced TV anchor thinks he has a ticket back to the big time when a domestic terrorist calls into his radio show just before blowing up a bridge. As straight-forward as its own title, A Hijacking is the slow-boiling story of a Danish cargo ship taken hostage by Somali pirates and how the company CEO negotiates its eventual release from the safe confines of a boardroom. That sounds like a spoiler except there isn't much mystery to this movie. Instead, we're simply gifted with gripping performances and an authentic examination of how such international events must go down.

The Spectacular Now

Stars. Miles Teller, Shailene Woodley

The Spectacular Now may be this generation's The Breakfast Club. Its by no means as funny (nor does it intend to be) but similar themes (and even the tidy use of personal essay as epilogue) are definitely present. In the film, a charming teen reluctantly falls for his rebound girlfriend even as he battles burgeoning alcoholism and a fuzzy future. Deftly directed by James Ponsoldt (Smashed), few films deal with teenage drama with such skilled tenderness.

In the past few years, 5,000 Africans have died making the extraordinarily dangerous and illegal sea journey from Dakar to Spain in search of work. Touré's depiction of 30 men and one woman moves gracefully and quietly, beginning with scenes from the lives they're escaping to the painfully predictable end. It's so lifelike it feels like a documentary. The action's set largely in an open boat, but the film is never less than riveting and humbling. ANNE BRODIE

Boy meets world. Jamie Campbell Bower makes the most of a press tour

Jamie Campbell Bower, right, is on a whirlwind press tour. CONTRIBUTED

Jamie Campbell Bower is no stranger to movies based on wildly successful book series, having popped up in the Harry Potter and Twilight worlds, but with Mortal Instruments: City of Bones, he's putting in more hours — and getting more camera time — than before as Jace Wayland, a half-angel demon-hunter and love interest for Clary Fray (Lily Collins) in the franchise's first instalment. That means he's also up for far more time publicizing the film, as he's learned on his seven-week international press tour.

You've been on a seven-week press tour. Have you defaulted to just going wherever people tell you to at this point without asking too many questions?
It's sort of what I do for a living, as well. I'm told what to say and where to stand, so my life's pretty easy. Ninety-nine per cent of my job is just turning up.

You don't get much time in all those countries, though, do you?
No. Someone said, "What are you going to do in Oslo?" And I was like, probably do some interviews and see the inside of a hotel, do the premiere and then f— off. That's about as much as I'm going to be able to do.

If you magically have time to relax on a tour stop, what's the first thing you do?
Try the local food, get out of bed. (In the past, when) I got somewhere I would just get into bed and pass out no matter what time it was because I'd be tired, but you don't have to do that. You can pull yourself out and just walk around. Take pictures, do something unexpected.

Surely you're used to the rabidity of fans for this kind of franchise by now.
Well … the word fan is an abbreviation of the word fanatic (laughs). Look, I'm really aware and I'm really grateful for the fact that without the people who read the books, I wouldn't be sitting here talking to you. So they deserve my time. They deserve five minutes if they come up to me on the street, they deserve five minutes if I'm doing a signing or just to say hi. I think that's a really important lesson to be aware of. Life's about to get crazy for Lily Collins

Mortal Instruments. Actress stars in the first instalment of the latest tween franchise to hit the big screen — and she's ready for it

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Mortal Instruments: City of Bones opens next Wednesday. CONTRIBUTED

Lily Collins is bracing herself for the long haul with Mortal Instruments: City of Bones, the first in what's hoped to be a franchise of films based on the successful book series looking to capture some of that Twilight and Hunger Games magic. With the second film already green-lit — and going into production in September — Collins likes to think she knows what she's in for.

What sort of mental preparation do you have to do before signing up for a franchise like this?
You have to really love the story. I was a fan of the books before I was cast, and I just think the story gets better and better. We hope that it goes to a sequel, and then the second that it gets green-lit to do a sequel you're like, "Aw, yes! I get to tell that part of the story now!" There are so many things in our movie that are introduced in the first book that you address in the movie that get cleared up ... later that you really want the chance to (explain) because it could leave you at a major cliffhanger and unresolved, you know what I mean? There are so many things that you have to be careful about, but I so badly want to get to that point where you can explain things. You sign on wanting to do that. You need to want to go there, not just, "I just want to do the first one." You need to love the whole story.

How do you approach the idea of spoilers when the film is based on a popular book series?
It's so weird. I don't know what I can say and what I can't say. It's in a book, and it's online. But then everyone's saying, "Don't remind them." I don't want to actively ruin the story for you. If you really wanted to know, you could totally find out, but I'm not going to be that person responsible.

You don't get that with a movie made from an original screenplay.
No, you don't. Then you have to sign those confidentiality agreements, and that's when it's like the forbidden fruit. When you're not supposed to say something, that's when you really, really want to say it. And then you just blurt it out without even knowing it.

How much do you pay attention to online fan discussions?
I think originally when I was cast I didn't quite understand the scope of the films or the books, and then all of a sudden all of these websites blasted up, and Twitter and Facebook and everything, and I was like, "Oh, it's actually really big." For every positive comment you find, you'll find five bad ones, so I really try to separate myself. It's exciting when people come up who are excited about things and that kind of gives me the extra drive to get through a long shooting day, but I think actively trying to find that stuff will only end up bringing you negativity as well. It's just not worth it. Already the articles aren't great, and then the comments just bring you down even further. "Like, I was so excited and now you've just made me upset. Thanks."

Metro World News in Hollywood

For the finale in director Edgar Wright's Cornetto Trilogy — following Shaun of the Dead and Hot Fuzz — actor and co-writer Simon Pegg wanted to play something other than the nice guy. Enter the loudmouthed, stuck-in-the-past Gary King (Pegg), who reunites his reluctant high school chums for a night of binge-drinking and nostalgia in The World's End. While Gary is very much the hero of the film, he's not exactly likeable, and that's entirely by design, according to Pegg.

"Selfishly, I wanted to be the overtly comic one in this," Pegg says. "And I wanted to make Gary as maddening and irritating and difficult to like as possible because I knew ultimately there was an excuse for it. And also, it's just a lot of fun to be such a d—. As an actor, it's a gift."

Gary was very much the top dog in high school, leading around his pals (played as adults by Nick Frost, Martin Freeman, Paddy Considine and Eddie Marsan) with little regard for how his future might play out. "I knew guys like that who were the absolute most popular boy. They were the best looking, they were in a band, they were the lead singer of that band, they got all the girls and then they never quite moved on past that," Pegg says. "That glory was so intense that anything that came subsequently was unfulfilling and that ate away at them so that they started to live in the past and then eventually just became shadows of who they were in every way, all their potential all lost. And it's really sad. I wanted Gary to be at once maddening and lovable and d—ish."

Comics = control?

A self-proclaimed geek and long-time comics fan, Simon Pegg feels right at home at San Diego Comic-Con, where he and Edgar Wright brought The World's End for an early North American unveiling. But given how much Comic-Con and the popular culture it celebrates have come to dominate the entertainment industry, Pegg has to admit he's a bit worried. "I read an essay on America by Jean Baudrillard when I was at university and it was all about the infantilization of society and about how we are kept young by being fed ... arguably juvenile stuff," he says. "It keeps us young because it keeps us in touch with our childhood, makes us more pliable, makes us a bit easier to control."

The World's End opens next Friday. CONTRIBUTED

Author caught up in Spider-Man's web

Q&A. The Night Gwen Stacy Died author talks about writing on the move and what inspired her to create this comic-influenced tale

ALISON BOWEN
Metro World News in New York City

The Night Gwen Stacy Died is not your ordinary novel. Infusing a flair of superhero adventure, it follows a high school student slash gas station attendant, Sheila, who begins chatting with a young cab driver coming in to gas up. He calls himself Peter Parker. Next, he dubs her Gwen Stacy — Spider-Man's first love — and they eventually embark on a road trip, mixing together comic book plot and a real-life urge to save people. Author Sarah Bruni tells us what — including poring over comics in Uruguay — inspired her to spin this tale.

How did you get the idea for this book?
It's a very unique plot. I actually wrote a collection of short stories that was a part of my MFA thesis project, and there was one 25-page story that featured a young man who was donning the name Peter Parker and pushing the identity of one of Spider-Man's girlfriends onto this young woman at a gas station. I didn't really know what this guy was doing in my story. I was not a big comic book reader at all. I was sort of interested in someone being audacious enough to take these steps.

Did you read comic books as a kid, or how many hours did you spend catching up on the story?
There was probably about a six-month period where I was reading the first 10 years of Spider-Man comics (on a CD-ROM set). I was able to see the original pages, with the advertisements and the letters from the readers, and so I felt like every time I was sitting down to this, I was opening this time capsule. … You see how important the story was to people at a certain time, especially a particular kind of male reader.

You wrote this for years in several different cities. Did you ever think about moving on?
I wrote a collection of short stories, and then shortly after that I moved to San Francisco, signed with my agent. We were trying to do a novel in stories, then when it didn't sell, I actually moved to Montevideo, Uruguay. That's where I wrote the bulk of the novel manuscript. I went there thinking I had ditched the story completely and was interested in starting something new. But I wanted to put myself in a place where I was completely removed from stimuli and had time to write, so I was thinking of it as a makeshift writer's residency for myself. I brought all these Spider-Man comics with me, so I knew that there was a part of my mind that knew I wasn't done with the story.

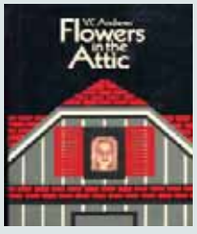
Story may be true

Was Flowers in the Attic real?



The good thing about your teenage fascination with Flowers in the Attic is that once you get a little older, you can laugh about it. The whole story's so outlandish that nothing like that could ever actually happen. Right? ... Right?! Not so fast. In an interview with The Toast, Ann Patty, who was V.C. Andrews' editor, says the story behind Flowers in the Attic might actually have some truth to it. "Flowers in the Attic was based on a story (V.C. Andrews) heard when she was in the hospital for a spinal operation," she said. "Well, someone told it to her, yes. Some doctor there. So I'd guess that some aspects of it were true — at least the aspect of kids being hidden away. Whether the twins were real, the sex, the time frame, probably not. I think it was just the concept of kids hidden in the attic so the mother could inherit a fortune." Oh, OK. So just the torturous imprisonment part is true. Cool. That makes us all feel so much better. METRO

SOUND CHECK
Alan Cross

A little singing followed by some gurning and parasailing. You read that right.

Why'd You Only Call Me When You're High?/Arctic Monkeys

The Monkeys' Alex Turner has an amazing knack for writing plain-speaking conversational lyrics. This track is from the band's upcoming fifth album, AM (Sept 9).

Synth Gurning/Vince Clarke

Vince — one-half of Erasure and former Depeche Mode man — is looking for fans to make synthesizer sounds with their mouths for some kind of future project. Watch him demonstrate.

Parasailing/Chris Hau

First Chris showed it was possible to sing, play guitar and surf at the same time. (Take that, Jack Johnson!) For his next trick, he performs while parasailing at a height of 400 feet.

New music. Walking Papers plan on sticking around in the business

Walking Papers are on the verge of breaking. CONTRIBUTED

When it comes to music, Seattle is just that kind of city. You know, the kind where everyone knows everyone and at some point, everyone plays with everyone else. Take Walking Papers, a year-old heavy rock outfit whose self-titled debut album came out on Tuesday.

The band includes bassist Duff McKagan (Guns N' Roses, Velvet Revolver), drummer Barrett Martin (Screaming Trees, Mad Season), and — a little less famously — vocalist and guitarist Jeff Angell and keyboardist Benjamin Anderson, both of the band Missionary Position.

But, occasionally, local bigwigs like Alice in Chains's Jerry Cantrell and Pearl Jam's Mike McCready (the latter also plays on the album) jump on stage with them.

"It's always gone on," McKagan says of Seattle's band-hopping stew. "I grew up playing in bands here and came back in '93. There's always been this brother and sisterhood thing of sharing gear, no questions asked, and sharing ideas. When I moved to L.A. I was struck by how competitive music is there, which blew my mind. I guess it's a Seattle thing. It's very incestuous here."

Through his longtime friendship with Angell and Martin, McKagan came on board and then Anderson. For all the superstar power this band packs, McKagan is realistic about his new band's long-term future.

"This band should be on the radio. It's the most commercial, accessible band I've ever been in," he says, sighing at rock radio's demise.

"We have hopes. We have a ton of new songs. The band writes a lot. We're definitely going to do another record. You just cross your fingers and hope."

Legendary rock label celebrates 25 years

Seattle music. Sub Pop Records, best known for launching Nirvana and Soundgarden, talks up Canadian band as best live rock act in the world today

Having just celebrated 25 years of Sub Pop Records, co-founder Jonathan Poneman isn't sure what the future holds.

And that's fine with him. Asked about his hopes for the quarter-century ahead, Poneman says: "That it be surprising."

"I don't want to plan things out and follow some sort of scheme," he said in an interview in his office. "I want life to surprise me and life to surprise us all."

The 52-year-old Poneman is no stranger to life's surprises. He revealed in May he had been diagnosed with Parkinson's disease.

"And of course, while I wish that I didn't have it, now that I do have it it's been an interesting adventure in life. And interesting adventures come in weird packages," he added, stretching out the word "weird."

"You take weird paths and sometimes it leads you to some pretty amazing, wonderful situations. So that's what I want — amazing and wonderful."

As part of Sub Pop Records' Silver Jubilee celebration, Seattle grunge band Mudhoney performs from on top of the city's iconic Space Needle.
ROD MAR/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Poneman has already achieved that at Sub Pop, the legendary label that helped launch Nirvana and Soundgarden and define the iconic Seattle sound.

Sub Pop's other godfather is Bruce Pavitt. Poneman calls him the label's creator, noting Sub Pop had existed "in Bruce's bedroom and in his magazine columns and his cassette tape series," before the two formally established the company in 1988.

Canadian bands who have found a home at Sub Pop include the Constantines, Eric's Trip, Handsome Furs, Hardship Post, Hot Hot Heat, Jale, and Zumpano.

Toronto's Metz is one of the label's brightest stars today.

"Bruce and I are in agreement that they're the best live rock 'n' roll band in the world right now," Poneman said.

"I think the record that they made for us is extraordinary but I still think that live, (the music) is transcendent ... As great as that record is, I would say they're even greater live. And that's not to diminish the record, it's more to exult the live experience."

A twist on good cop, bad cop

TV. Show set in Detroit based on British mini-series of the same name

LINDA LABAN
Metro World News

Detective Joe Geddes is a man who is finding himself in more ways than one. The new AMC cop drama, Low Winter Sun, pairs Geddes, played by English actor Lennie James, with fellow Detroit detective, Frank Agnew, played by fellow Brit actor Mark Strong (Green Lantern, Zero Dark Thirty).

The twosome murders a corrupt colleague, leaving Geddes searching to regain his moral centre — but alas, he and Agnew are assigned to find the murderer.

"He's trying to rescue himself and the rescue begins with the death of his partner, whom he kills," James says of Geddes. "He has been letting himself down for years and is trying to live up to his own expectations. He has a strong moral centre and he's acted against it for far too long."

Low Winter Sun is based on a British mini-series of the same name that's reset in Detroit. It's far from a conventional cop drama, buddy saga or whodunit. "We know who did it," says James. "Then, those two cops are put in place of investigating the crime they've committed. Our story is also about two guys unsolving a case as opposed to solving it." James' early career included playing the bungling would-be criminal in Guy Ritchie's Snatch, and more recently, roles in The Walking Dead and last year's Guy Pearce-starring Lockout. James says he's played many cops, but Geddes and his inner journey to salvation — not to mention this turnaround on the good-cop-bad- cop story — was a juicy role he relished.

"The first step onto the road to redemption is a heinous act of violence, which for an actor is just gravy," says James. "It's what you want to play; the more complex the character, the more difficult the situations. I'm someone who gets bored very quickly, so I like to be interested. This one, you can't drop the ball — there's a tension that exists in this story that you can't let sag. This job has taken some proper lifting," James adds, using an English colloquialism for tackling hard work, "and I enjoyed that a lot."

Breaking Bad. Bob Odenkirk is ready for a Saul Goodman spinoff

MEREDITH ENGEL
Metro World News in New York City

Fans of Breaking Bad know that killing off major characters is nothing new to the series. Anyone who thought Bob Odenkirk's character, the sleazy lawyer Saul Goodman, would get axed before the final eight episodes is in good company.

Odenkirk has made it to at least this point in the series, and there's talk about a possible spinoff for his character after the show draws to a close. But we'll let the man himself tell you more about that, as well as the end of the series.

Everyone's got high expectations about this last season. How do you feel leading up to it?

I'm gonna feel just like a fan feels, just like you or anyone who loves the show. I have not read the final episode ... I stuffed it through my trash so I wouldn't be tempted. Once I finish shooting it I feel just like you do, where I can't wait to see it. Even though the script has everything in it — all the visuals, all the moments — it's still always a surprise when I watch it. It still gets me just like it gets any audience member. … I know I'm gonna be going crazy every week, waiting for the next one. … It's a tribute to (creator) Vince Gilligan and the writers' ability to weave a spell.

Do you know how Saul's story ends?

Bob Odenkirk GETTY IMAGES

Well, I like to think it doesn't end, but ... I would say I pretty much know how Saul's story ends. I don't know ultimately how Walter White's story ends.

So if Saul's story doesn't end, what's all this talk of a spinoff?

Yeah, you're onto something (laughs). You know, look, for some reason people feel great affection toward Saul Goodman. They like him and they want him to carry on. I don't know, Vince Gilligan should answer that question, or Peter Gould maybe — Peter's one of the writers who wrote the first episode Saul appeared on, and whenever Vince talks about it with people he always talks about working with Peter on that. But you know, in his defense, he's been completely 100 per cent focused on finishing this show and making it satisfying for the fans, and from what I think he hasn't had a lot of time to flesh out any idea he has for a Saul Goodman spinoff.

Hell of a way to be a Southerner

Television. Anson Mount is back as the vengeful Cullen Bohannon on Hell on Wheels, now in its third season on AMC

MEREDITH ENGEL
Metro World News

A native of Tennessee, Anson Mount is tired of the Southern stereotypes he's used to seeing on camera.

"It pisses me off," says the 40-year-old actor, who plays the former Confederate soldier Cullen Bohannon on Hell on Wheels, which returned for its third season on AMC earlier this month. "It's just the same old s— all the time: uneducated, incestuous, racist."

When Mount saw the script for Hell on Wheels, about the creation of the first transcontinental railroad, he knew he had found something different.

"We tend to have a lot of books and history classes and films set around the Civil War, but Reconstruction has not been closely examined," he says of the era that followed the Civil War.

While the characters on the show adjust to a new America, Mount and the rest of his cast adjust to a new show runner: John Tirth (Terminator: The Sarah Connor Chronicles).

"They're different battle plans," Mount says of Tirth's style.

Further reading

Mount says he had "an amazing Civil War his- tory teacher" and that he recalls "so much from his class." But since the show focuses heavily on the years after the big war, "I actually had to go back and do some more reading," he says.

This season

Reconstruction of the country and of the self

"I think this is gonna be our best season yet, and I'm not just giving out lip service," Mount says, adding that they've "turned a corner with the show." Bohannon's struggles aren't going to let up, but Mount is hopeful for his character. "Either he goes further into addiction until he's dead, or he finds a way out. We had to find a way to dig him out and that involves reconstructing your soul at the same time that we're constructing the railroads, so I think metaphorically he gets out."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Robert Pattinson ALL IMAGES GETTY, EXCEPT YOUNG: CONTRIBUTED

Pattinson moves on by moving into new mansion

Robert Pattinson has some comfortable new digs. The actor — who previously shared a home with ex-girlfriend Kristen Stewart — is reportedly renting a swanky mansion in a gated community in Beverly Hills, according to E! News. The Mediterranean-style home is estimated to be worth $3.5 million. "It's very beautiful, but it does not have a lot of furniture. You can tell he has not lived there for very long," a source says. "It is very sparse right now."

Simon Cowell

Divorce finalized by alleged mom of Cowell's baby

Lauren Silverman, the woman reportedly pregnant with Simon Cowell's child, has finally reached a divorce settlement with her husband, Andrew Silverman, according to TMZ. The couple has agreed to joint custody of their seven-year-old son, and Lauren stands to get a little more than $2 million. "As I've said all along, my priority was resolving this quickly for the sake of our son," Andrew says in a statement. "Lauren and I both love him very much and I'm looking forward to starting a new chapter in our lives."

The Word

Young and carefree: The WWE's first openly gay wrestler

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News in New York City

Professional wrestling doesn't get a whole lot of ink around the ol' Word, because wrestlers, as a rule, neither party with Justin Bieber nor appear naked on Game of Thrones (although they're more than welcome to do either). But this story is too sweet not to share. TMZ caught up with WWE superstar Darren Young and asked him if he thought a gay wrestler could make it in the WWE. Young — who was remarkably good-natured about the whole thing, given that TMZ apparently ran him down at the baggage carousel in LAX — replied, "Absolutely. Look at me. I'm a WWE superstar and to be honest with you, I'll tell you right now, I'm gay. And I'm happy. I'm very happy." Young seemed utterly cheerful about his revelation. "I just don't think it matters. Does it matter to you?" he asked his interviewer, who responded, "Not one iota." The WWE superstar added that he's not worried about how his revelation will be received in the wrestling world. "I'm happy with myself. Some people might not like it, some people will like it," he shrugged. Young is the first openly gay WWE wrestler, and the first ever pro wrestler to come out while signed to a major promotion.

Dominic Monaghan

Lost star in a vicious game of he said, she said

Lost star Dominic Monaghan apparently doesn't take rejection well. A young Los Angeles woman — who wishes to remain anonymous — says that she was on the receiving end of some vile and hurtful text messages from Monaghan after she turned him down for sex, according to Radar Online. One particularly rough message reads: "When did I ever say I wanted to have sex with you? You appear riddled with herpes and smell odd. I couldn't invite you to one of my three houses (because) I'd be nervous you would steal s—." Monaghan confirms the texts are from him, but he says there's more to the story. "I wonder if you are aware that she has been calling me for over two years when I have repeatedly asked her not to," he tells the website. "Today I told her again via text that her behaviour was troubling to me and for her not to contact me."

Liquid Assets

Calling all coffee lovers

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

Pairing wine with a meal is one of life's simple pleasures. But I bet the majority of you typically enjoy your vino as a standalone experience.

Winemakers know this, and have been steering a lot of their juice in a direction that tastes best sipped over casual conversation.

South Africa, long a producer of unique, value-oriented liquid, has been at the forefront of the wine-as-a-cocktail trend; riding the wave by taking advantage of the distinctive personalities imparted into its wine by an exotic terroir and the utilization of oak to create unconventional flavours.

The pinotage grape has been South Africa's superstar for decades. It's always made laid-back wines but, with innovative barrel aging, some can take on the dominating expression of chocolate and coffee.

The Grinder 2012 Pinotage ($13.95 - $14.99) is java goodness in a glass, with balanced tannins, a ripe core of berry fruit and mocha finish. Definitely drinkable on its own, it's a match for grilled meats and chocolaty desserts. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

- 1 tsp vanilla extract
- 1/3 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
- 1/3 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp baking powder
- 1/4 cup 2% plain yogurt (or 3% sour cream)
- 1/4 cup semisweet chocolate chips

Banana Cake
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 3 tbsp vegetable oil
- 1 egg
- 1 tsp vanilla extract
- 1 large ripe banana, mashed
- 3 tbsp 2% plain yogurt
- 3/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp baking powder
- 1/2 tsp baking soda

Icing
- 1/4 cup softened light cream cheese (about 2 oz/60 g)
- 2/3 cup icing sugar
- 1 1/2 tsp cocoa powder

1. Preheat the oven to 350 F (175 C). Lightly coat a 9-inch (22 cm) square baking pan with cooking spray.

2. To make the brownie cake: Combine the sugar, oil, egg and vanilla in a bowl until well mixed. Add the cocoa and mix well. Add the flour, baking powder, yogurt and chocolate chips, mixing just until combined and smooth. Don't overmix. Pour the batter into the pan and gently spread.

3. To make the banana cake: Combine the sugar, oil, egg, vanilla and banana in a bowl until well mixed. Add the yogurt, flour, baking powder and baking soda. Mix until just combined. Pour over the brownie cake and with a wet knife spread to cover brownie

4. Bake 25 minutes or just until a tester comes out dry.

5. To make the icing: Blend all the icing ingredients in a blender or food processor until smooth. If too thick, add a few drops of water. Spread on cake once cool, and serve.

Just opened: The Chase

In the historic Dineen Building at Yonge and Temperance (10 Temperance St.) you'll now find The Chase and The Chase Fish and Oyster. The former is serving up refined seafood in a beautiful atmosphere (patio included) while the latter is a more rustic treat for the taste buds. Both restaurants are upping the ante on Toronto's oceanic offerings, and we see nothing wrong with that!

Just opened: Libertine

The snack bar trend keeps growing in the city, and you won't find us complaining. Small bites, perfect for late night eats or pre-late night drinks, are always on offer at these spots, and the newest entrant to the scene could be the most impressive yet. The Libertine opened up just a few days ago at 1307 Dundas W., and already the buzz abounds at this new joint.

Just opened: Destingo

At 739 Queen W. you'll now find Destingo, a new Italian restaurant that's bringing comfort cuisine to the west end strip and infusing it with Italian influence. The pedigree at this place is impressive: both the owner and chef are formerly of Yorkville mainstay Vaticano. But the food is more rustic than refined, and offers up a creative take on Italian classics.

CNE: Now with Cronut Burgers

It launches today and runs through Sept. 2. Yes, ladies and gents, The Ex is back and it's bigger than ever. Featuring rides aplenty, the midway for all you gamers, celebrity chefs and live entertainment, and, of course, the food pavilion, which this year sees the already hyped Cronut Burger making its debut, the CNE at Exhibition Place is one grand event you won't want to miss.

Just opened: Brock Sandwich

Ah, the good ol' sandwich shop. We love spots that focus on one thing and do it really, really, really well. That's exactly what you're in for when you pop by Brock Sandwich, a new, er, sandwich shop that's opened up at 1260 Bloor St. W. Hearty bites of bliss is what you'll find within, where they use only the finest ingredients to craft these sammies.

Summer Craft Beer Fest

Thursday sees another Craft Beer Festival coming to the city. The Summer Craft Beer Fest is going down in about a week's time at 171 East Liberty St., Unit 218. More than 20 craft breweries will be on hand to offer up their hand-crafted, pure pints of perfection, alongside nosh from some of the best Liberty Market Food Vendors. Get your tickets early!

Odds favour Up With the Birds to win Breeders' Stakes

Queen's Plate runner-up Up With the Birds is the early 6-5 favourite for the $500,000 Breeders' Stakes.

Up With the Birds will break from the No. 5 post in the 1 1/2-mile turf race Sunday at Woodbine Racetrack, the third leg of Canadian thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

The winners of the opening two legs — Queen's Plate champion Midnight Aria and Prince of Wales victor Uncaptured — won't be in the 10-horse field Sunday.

Up With the Birds finished a half-length behind Midnight Aria in the 1 1/4-mile, $1-million Queen's Plate on July 7 on Woodbine's polytrack.

MLB. Boston gets on base against Buehrle, but has trouble cashing in baserunners against veteran starter

On Thursday

Blue Jays	Red Sox

Starting pitcher Mark Buehrle outlasted Jake Peavy on Thursday as the Toronto Blue Jays edged the Boston Red Sox 2-1 for their second win in a row.

Buehrle (9-7) gave up 10 hits over seven innings but allowed just one run in a solid outing for the Blue Jays (56-65).

Peavy (9-5) was also up to the task, striking out four and giving up two runs — one earned — on five hits over six innings of work. Boston (72-51) had no trouble getting on base, but struggled to bring home its runners, stranding 12 on base.

Dustin Pedroia and Daniel Nava led the Red Sox offence with three hits each.

Peavy was in firm control for the first six innings of the game, giving up just two hits and striking out four as Boston held on to a 1-0 lead.

But the Blue Jays figured Peavy out in the seventh. Jose Bautista earned an infield single when Will Middlebrooks misplayed the ball at third base. Edwin Encarnacion's single up the middle then advanced Bautista to second.

Lawrie drove Bautista home with another single to centre field, advancing Encarnacion to third with no outs.

That ended Peavy's night with left-handed reliever Craig Breslow replacing him on the mound.

Mark DeRosa — pinch hitting for first baseman Adam Lind — gave the Blue Jays a 2-1 lead when Encarnacion scored from third on his pop fly to left-centre field.

Drouin springs for a bronze medal at track and field finals

In Canadian company.
Drouin joins two other Canucks with podium finishes at world championships

Derek Drouin wanted everyone to know his Olympic bronze medal last summer was no fluke.

He sent that message loud and clear Thursday at the world track and field championships, capturing another bronze in men's high jump and setting a Canadian record in the process.

The native of Corunna, Ont., cleared 2.38 metres to finish behind Bohdan Bondarenko of Ukraine, who won gold with a jump of 2.41. Mutaz Essa Barshim of Qatar took silver in 2.38 while reigning Olympic champion Ivan Ukhov of Russia finished fourth at 2.35.

"I wanted to prove this year that I deserved to be on the podium in London 2012. Feels good to have accomplished that goal," Drouin said.

Drouin's bronze at the London Olympics was the lone Canadian medal in track and field last summer, but he has company in Moscow. Decathlete Damian Warner (bronze) and heptathlete Brianne Theisen Eaton (silver) have also been on the podium at the world championships.

"I was joking after that I never thought I would only place third jumping 2.38 metres. I'm certainly not disappointed — it was an incredible competition," Drouin said. "I felt like 2.41 metres was attainable but it's always emotional when you set a personal best. Getting another one in the same competition was a daunting task. That height is definitely a realistic goal for me now." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alfie: Talks with Sens went nowhere

It appears money played a major role in Daniel Alfredsson's decision to leave the Ottawa Senators for the Detroit Red Wings.

Speaking to reporters in Ottawa on Thursday, Alfredsson admitted contract negotiations — or the lack thereof — were a big factor in his choice to sign with the Red Wings as a free agent on July 5 rather than remain with the only NHL team he's ever played for.

Alfredsson explained that his last contract had been structured under the assumption he would retire before the final year of the deal — the 2012-13 season — which was for $1 million US. "However, after the 2012 season, I told the Sens I wanted to play another season," he said. "I also asked to look at a possible extension for this upcoming season at a fair amount to balance out the two years for both of us. They agreed.

"Sadly, the contract negotiations went nowhere." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Are you happy with the way your life is going? If not then you must do something about it. Whether you see it as hard or easy, your life is, ultimately, nothing more than a choice. Reality will follow that choice.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Don't waste time on things you cannot change. You have only a limited amount of time and energy at your disposal so your aims must be limited too. Focus on what you are good.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
See what happens today as a challenge rather than as a setback. Even if a friend or colleague lets you down, you should look on the bright side: It means one less person with whom to share the rewards!

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
You may have to admit, if only to yourself, that a particular aim is going to stay beyond your reach, at least for now. So what? You've got plenty of others to go after.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
There is no such thing as luck and the sooner you realize that, the better your "luck" is likely to be. A social occasion will bring opportunities to meet new people and make important new contacts.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
There will be chaos today as those around you realize they have only limited time to get things done. Sit back with a smug look on your face as you are on top of your tasks.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
The entry of Venus, your ruler, into your sign will encourage you to believe that life is good and about to get even better. Believing it will make it true.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You may lack enthusiasm today but that is not necessarily a bad thing. You have been so hard-working in recent weeks that you could probably do with a break. Take it.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Even if you feel you have not achieved as much as you should have recently, don't let it worry you. In a matter of days you will be doing things you never dreamed you would be able to master. Have fun.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
As Venus changes signs today, it's a good time to resolve outstanding disputes you may have with people in positions of power. Next time, try not to rub them the wrong way!

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Someone will make you an offer you find hard to refuse but refuse it you must because the planets warn it will mean a mountain of extra work for you. The less you have to worry about the better.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You need some time to think through the changes that have taken place in your life in recent months. More importantly, you need some peace and quiet as you can't think clearly with voices coming at you from every direction. SALLY BROMPTON
